

Motivational Interviewing Introduction (Remote)

Training Overview

Motivational Interviewing (MI) offers a practical, evidence-based approach for supporting clients in making and sustaining positive behavior changes. Originally developed in the drug and alcohol field, over 300 clinical trials demonstrate the efficacy of MI across a range of populations and target behaviors (Miller, W. & Rollnick, S.). In particular, MI has been shown to be especially effective in brief clinical encounters and for individuals not ready or unsure about change. This intensive 8-hour virtual/remote MI introductory workshop will provide participants an overview of the theory, principles, skills, and current advances of MI. Participants will be guided through a sequence of learning activities to explore and shape MI practice behavior, and to support the on-going process for developing proficiency in MI. Learning activities will include demonstrations, videotape examples, “real-plays,” case studies, small group exercises, and participant practice with feedback.

Learning Objectives

- List four key ingredients of the guiding philosophy of Motivational Interviewing (MI);
- Identify the five foundational communication skills of MI from demonstrations and video example;
- Name two core MI strategies for eliciting and exploring clients’ own reasons for change in real-play practice exercises;
- Describe the four processes of MI for navigating clinical conversations in the direction of client change goals; and
- Identify one key issue for incorporating the primary skills and strategies of MI into counselling practice.
